Scope provided lead urban design and architectural services for station programs, concepts, locations; right-of-way and boulevard design; graphics and renderings.

This current planning and design effort by the MTA, Los Angeles County's transit agency, will bring a new level of mass transit to the congested Mid-City and Westside of Los Angeles along Exposition Boulevard. A new light rail line is being planned, and in the environmental phase, Suisman Urban Design has provided architectural and urban design services related to street and cross-section design, station design, and community enhancements. We have been involved in the community meeting process and provided graphics as well as renderings to explain the project to the general public.
